New state, federal land-use plans to have uncertain impact here

- WMNF 'roadless' rule could halt logging in Caribou-Speckled area
- The nearby 'ecological reserve' is on land little used for logging

By ALISON ALOISIO

Six thousand acres of land in the Caribou-Speckled Mountain area will be included under the U.S. Forest Service's recently-approved logging ban in designated roadless areas. But whether the designation will actually affect logging on the land is not yet clear.

The roadless rule, approved this month by former President Bill Clinton, bans logging and roadbuilding on almost one-third of inventoried roadless areas in the National Forest system. About 45,000 acres in the White Mountain National Forest are affected.

There is a possibility Congress could rescind the action following an anticipated review.

About half of the 6,000 acres in the Caribou-Speckled Mountain area lie in a corridor along Route 113, according to Wayne Millen, assistant district ranger with the U.S. Forest Service. Logging has been ongoing in that area for the past five years. Harvesting takes place generally in 15- to 20- year cycles, and is just concluding in that area this winter, Millen said. ### Gould's Chamberlain to race for U.S. World Championship team

David Chamberlain, assistant athletic director at Gould Academy, is one of the top Nordic racers in the country. Next month he will compete in the World Champion-ship in Lahti, Finland, as a member of the U.S. World Championship ski team.

Chamberlain is humble about his accomplishments. "I'm skiing well this year," is about as far as he will

It takes prodding to get him to add that he has placed in the top 15

in almost every race he's competed in since November. He's been one of the top American finisher in all races. He is currently ranked third in the nation on the FIS pointranking list.

Chamberlain's berth on the World Championship team has been a goal since he was a teenager. "Making the World Championship team is great," he said. "It's every bit as prestigious as making the Olympic team, as far as the level of competition."

World Cup freestylers now at Sunday River

The World Cup of freestyle skiing, and two Olympic gold medalists, come to Sunday River this week, as the resort hosts the U.S. Freestyle Grand National competition.

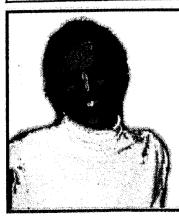

Mogulists will ski the bumps on the White Heat trail, while aerialists will take flight from jumps located just above Barker Base Lodge.
The FIS Freestyle World Cup is the highest-level competition series in the sport. Events take place around the world from August through March, culminating in the World Cup Finals. The Sunday River competition is the first freestyle World Cup event to be held in New England in nearly 20 years, and the first World Cup in any discipline at the Newry resort. Among those expected to compete are aerialist Eric Bergoust and moguls skier Donna Weinbrecht, both Olympic gold medalists. International competitors will include skiers from Finland and Belarus. The aerialists launch themselves 50 feet or more into the air, while performing twists and flips. Mogulists ski down an incline of 32 degrees, and perform two jumps along the way. The public is invited to watch the skiers train Thursday and Friday. Moguls training will take place on White Heat from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m., and aerials at Barker from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Non-skiers may board lift 9 at White Cap lodge to watch the moguls skiing. On Saturday, aerial qualifying events at Barker will begin at 9:45 a.m., with finals at 2 p.m. On Sunday, moguls qualifying competition starts at 10 a.m., with finals at 1 p.m.

Bethel board tables change in hours of operation at trash facility

By MICHAEL DANIELS

The newly formed tri-town Solid Waste and Recycling Board has held its first meeting and made its first two recommendations — and both have been rejected, at least for the moment, by the Bethel Board of

The SWR Board is made up of two members each from Bethel, Newry and Hanover. It was formed to manage the three towns' joint-transfer station and recycling facility on Route 2.

Following its first meeting, held Jan. 11, the board made two recommendations: keep the transfer/recycling facility open more hours, and adjust part of the costallocation formula for the operation to reflect more accurately the actual populations of the three towns.

But the Bethel selectmen Monday tabled the first of these, and unanimously rejected the second.

The additional hours were rejected because there is no money in Bethel's current budget to pay for the attendants to put in more time.

The facility is currently open 13 hours a week. The SWR Board proposed a 61 percent increase, to 21 hours a week.

But that would drive up Bethel's hare of the annual payroll costs (currently $11,000) to $24,000.

Coming up with the money would mean either overspending the amount in the current budget or calling a special Town Meeting to approve the increase.

Neither option appealed to the

"I think the idea (extending the hours) is a good one, but we need to find out where the money is coming from," said Board Chairman Dutch Dresser. "I'm not willing to sit here and vote money the, town doesn't know about."

Town Manager Scott Cole, one of Bethel's two members on the SWR Board, acknowledged later that the additional cost had not been built into the current budget. But neither, he said, had the additional revenues that will be coming in from the expanded operation. Consequently, the overall effect on the budget, he said, "would be a wash."

But wash or no wash, except in emergency situations it is illegal for towns to spend more money than voters have allocated, and the selectmen were clearly reluctant to have to face voters at the annual Town Meeting in June and explain to them why an account had been

WHAT MORE COULD I HAVE DONE?

To the Editor:

I am distressed at my depiction several weeks ago in the police log as an animal abuser, for many reasons that include the following:

1.1.) I left two cats (out of 15 cats and kittens that my daughter and I had rescued and found homes for) in my home with heat, food, water, sanitary outlet and I had made arrangements for a friend to check on them on

2.) My home lost electricity because of an exterior ice jam that resulted in flooding my home from the third floor to the basement. This condition was beyond my control or knowledge.

3.) After getting a message from my neighbor regarding the situation at my home I responded immediately.

4.) When informed by property management of the loss of heat, my first concern was for the welfare of the animals. I was assured that the cats were being well taken care of.

Can you think of anything else I could or should have done? Question: Is the town of Bethel prepared to prosecute farm owners with "barn cats" who are routinely expected to survive with no food, noheat, no daily caretaker? Or is my case, even with the circumstances described above, going to be a selective enforcement?

I would also at his time like to thank my friends and neighbors for their support and help during this time.

GREENWOOD NOISE ORDINANCE

To the Editor: "Members of the Greenwood Planning Board are considering the proposal of a noise pollution ordinance for the town's approval. The purpose would be to protect residents from the undue disturbance of extremely loud, potentially injurious noise during certain hours (probably normal sleep time).

In the wording of such an ordinance, careful consideration would be applied to specifics such as: the intensity level of sound to be prohibited, the time duration of noise required to classify it prohibited, and the hours during which prohibition would be in effect.

Also, clearly, the enforcement of such an ordinance would require reliable, properly calibrated measurement and recording equipment operated by qualified individuals.

The board would very much like to entertain the response, pro or con, of Greenwood residents to the possible institution of such an ordinance. Any letters in that regard to Greenwood Planning Board at the Greenwood Town Office (875-2773) will be given thorough consideration.

Ed Cezare, For the Greenwood Planning Board

In Our Backyard:

Run Your Machine Clean

Winter is upon us, and with the weekly dustings of the white stuff, snowmobilers are out en masse. With over 12,000 miles of maintained snowmobile trails in Maine, it is no wonder this thrill sport has burgeoned in popularity over recent years. In the mid-1980s, snowmobiles registered in the state numbered around 50,000. Since then, registration has ballooned to over 80,000.

While many people enjoy the thrill of the ride, they are also concerned about snowmobile emissions and the effects the exhaust may have on their health and the natural areas they frequent. The two-stroke engines used in snow machines emit 20 to 33 percent of their fuel unburned. Most of the visible haze in two-stroke exhaust is from the lube oil, which is mixed directly in the gasoline.

Śnowmobile emissions include carbon monoxide (CO), hydrocarbons (HC), particulate matter and toxic air pollutants. These pollutants can pose a health hazard to snowmobile riders and others in the area, especially to children, pregnant women, older people and those with cardiovascular disease or impaired lung function, such as asthma. Other contaminants from two-stroke engines, such as benzene and toluene, can be found in the snow along trails. Come the spring thaw, the snowmelt may carry these pollutants with it, at levels toxic to aquatic microorganisms, possibly contaminating the rivers and lakes that many snowmobile enthusiasts return to for summer fishing.

Researchers in the Yellowstone National Park area have been searching for ways to clean up snow machines. Last March organizers held the Clean Snowmobile Challenge 2000 in which college students competed to design snow machines with lower emissions, higher fuel economy and reduced noise, while maintaining performance capability. The winning team developed a machine with a four-stroke engine and a catalytic converter.

Snowmobile manufacturers are moving slowly to incorporate more efficient technology. Three companies have developed a snow machine with a four-stroke engine that reduces emissions and noise. However, only limited numbers of these models are currently available, in Montana, California, Minnesota and Michigan.

The United States Environmental Protection Agency has begun the process of developing rules that could reduce CO emissions by 50 percent and HC emissions by 60 percent or more in future models.

Until clean machines are available on the market, however, snowmobilers can take some steps to reduce emissions now. Installation of proper jets and proper clutch adjustments reduce fuel use and emissions of pollutants. A qualified mechanic can help with these adjustments.

Testing by the Montana Department of Environmental Quality found that synthetic low-particulate lube oils significantly reduce particulate emissions and smoke. The use of synthetic biodegradable lube oils along with a 10 percent ethanol blend fuel reduced carbon monoxide, particulate and unburned hydrocarbons, and is expected to reduce impacts on water quality. Snowmobile rental operators in Montana found that biodegradable lube oil and ethanol fuel also reduced maintenance costs and fuel consumption, eliminated carburetor freeze-up and increased power in their machines.

With more and more snowmobiles out on the trails, the future of this sport may depend on cleaner, quieter machines that protect the health of their riders and preserve good relationships with other winter recrea--Maine Department of Environmental Protection

MCLAUGHLIN SCIENCE BUILDING--A plan for a new 21,300-square-foot science building at Gould Academy was expected to be submitted to the Bethel Planning Board last night (Wednesday). The building, to be located on Elm Street next to the Oxford Telecom building, will house a 60-seat lecture hall and six classrooms/labs. The plan calls for construction to begin in April, with completion in July 2002.

feet of forest products have been taken from the area in the past five years. Whether there will be any future harvest cycles in that area may depend on whether it was "substantially altered" since it was first designated roadless back in the early 1980s. Areas qualifying as altered may be exempt from the ban, he said.

Millen said he does not know of any examples of what would represent substantial alterations of a roadless area. "Clarification may come from the Forest Plan when identify the roadless characteristics present in the area," he said. A 10-year forest management planning process is currently underway. If harvesting alone is considered a substantial alteration, the Caribou-Speckled area might qualify for an exemption. No roads were built to carry on the logging operations, he said.

Another roadless area, in the Bog Brook Valley, might also be considered for "substantially altered" status. But a portion in the west end of Mason Township would likely not meet exclusion criteria, because there has been no wood harvesting or roadbuilding, Millen said. If the USFS proposes future harvesting within any roadless area boundaries, it would follow existing regulations providing for public involvement and an analysis of environmental effects, Millen said.

Leon Favreau, president of Bethel Furniture Stock, said he opposes the roadless ban. "I don't think it's based on sound science and need," he said. "The White Mountain National Forest has some of the best timber around. It's unfortunate to let the wood go to waste." Environmental groups supporting such a ban, he said, "have an insatiable desire to set land aside." Every time a group tries to stop timber cutting on public forests, he said, the process involved raises the cost of the harvesting.

The rule is beginning to hit home in New Hampshire. Some mills take as much as 25 percent of their logs off the National Forest each year, according to those in the industry. The new rule takes about five percent of the forest from the region's timber base.

William Meadows, president of the Wilderness Society, said of the logging ban, "From Florida to Alaska Americans can celebrate one of the nation's greatest environmental achievements as President Clinton and the Forest Service today (Jan. 5) protected nearly 60 million acres of the nation's wild forests from logging and other development. This sweeping new protection is important as the Clean Water Act, the Clean Air Act, and other environmental milestones."

Ecological reserve set aside here A second new designation approved this month, this one from the Maine Bureau of Parks and Lands, establishes 13 tracts of land statewide as ecological reserves. Included is a 10,000-acre parcel in the Bethel area, in what is known as the Mahoosuc Unit (see map). It is not expected to have much effect on current activities on the land.

The 13 designated ecological reserves total 68,974 acres. The reserves will protect one or more natural ecosystems that are relatively undisturbed, and retain plant and animal communities native to Maine in their natural condition, according to the Bureau of Parks and Lands. The reserves "will serve as benchmarks for comparison with managed lands, maintain habitats and provide opportunities for education, monitoring and research," according to BPL press release.

The Maine Legislature authorized the establishment of the reserves last year, with the provision that traditional uses including hiking, hunting and fishing continue. The Maine Natural Areas Program, the Department of Inland Fisheries and Wildlife and the state's scientific community will establish a monitoring plan for the areas. The research will have applications in a variety of areas, including land management and habitat restora-

The natural features were identified during a statewide inventory of ecological significant areas conducted from 1995 to 1998 on public and private conservation land.

The legislation allows research, education and non-motorized recreation activities to continue. Use of existing snowmobile and ATV trails may continue if impacts to the ecological values are minimal.

Commercial mining, timber harvesting, and commercial sand and gravel excavation are uses that the legislation deemed incompatible with the purposes of the ecological reserves and are not allowed. BPL said 69 percent of the areas are not capable of sustained timber harvesting because of elevation, slope or wetlands and water.

There is currently no logging taking place on the Mahoosuc Unit tract, according to Joe Wiley of BPL. Most of the area in the reserve is in higher elevations along the Appalachian Trail, with a portion extending along the Goose Eye Brook area, he said.

Saunders Bros. doesn't want dam

GREENWOOD—The president of Saunders Brothers, owners of Gilbert Manufacturing, said last week he does not wish to own the Locke Mills Dam. But Clyde Pingree said he would contribute to upgrading the dam, and maintaining it. Recent inspections of the structure showed the berms on both sides need to be shored up, the sluice gate should be fixed, and an Emergency Action Plan created. Duane Gilbert, who formerly owned Gilberts, is the current owner of the dam. He has not made any effort to meet the inspection directives.

BDC dial-up accounts stop Feb. 1

BETHEL—Bethel Data Corporation dial-up accounts will no longer work as of Feb. 1, following the transfer of the accounts to CommTel, a statewide Internet service provider. According to Dutch Dresser, BDC chair, the BDC server will no longer receive or send mail for users, and any mail files on the server on that date will be irretrievably removed. Dresser recommends BDC subscribers ensure they have taken all data they wish to preserve off the server before then. Subscribers will receive services from CommTel through the period for which they have paid BDC, without further billing. After that time, users must make their own arrangements for service with CommTel or another provider.

Region 9 staff gets raise

MEXICO—Staff members of the Region 9 vocational school will get a 4 percent salary increase for the next fiscal year, following a vote by the board governing the school. The increase is based on the average salary increase and benefits schedule given to teachers from the region's three sending school districts (SAD44, SAD43 and SAD21). The salary agreement will also allow staff members with families to have 90 percent of their health insurance premiums paid by the region.

Bethel Inn popular nationwide

BETHEL—The Bethel Inn and Country Club ranks among the finest resorts in North America, according to a reader poll conducted by Conde Nast Traveler Magazine. The publication recently named the top ski resorts, and the inn ranked as the number three resort in the Eastern U.S. and 34th overall. The inn was also recognized for its fine dining, ranking first in the state of Maine and 21st in North America. Readers of the magazine evaluated 158 resorts in the U.S. and Canada, and were asked by an independent polling firm to rate resorts using six criteria: ski terrain and conditions, accommodations, town ambiance and amenities, lifts and lines, food service.

Get a new identity

BETHEL—A Bethel consulting firm is suggesting the region come up with a new name and larger sense of connected community in order to accelerate economic growth. Jay Hardy, of NEW Solutions said "SAD44" is not "sexy enough" and "the Bethel area" is too exclusive. Hardy was among two dozen representatives of business, education and government communities who gathered to discuss ideas at a meeting of the Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce Subcommittee on Economic Development last week. Other suggestions included determining an entity to maintain the region's economic growth vision, choose three to four major projects or priorities for the region and establish clearly defined lines of action.

Remember to license Fido

GREENWOOD-Town Manager Carol Whitman said residents are reminded that dog licenses expire Jan. 31. Beginning on Feb. 1, an additional late fee of $5 will be charged.

Flying Moose Classic

BETHEL--The Flying Moose Classic cross-country ski race will take place Sunday, Feb. 4 with an informal and low-key 10-kilometer event. Hosted by the Bethel Outing Club, the classical technique citizens' race takes place on the Gould Academy Trail system on the Grover Hill Road. Entrants will start in waves beginning at 11 a.m. For children, there will be two options on gentler terrain: a timed one-kilometer event, as well as a very short untimed "lollipop" loop. Awards for all events will be presented at Gould following the children's events. Signin'and race-day registration will take place from 9 to 10:30 a.m. at Gould on Church Street. Registrations may be mailed to: Race Secretary, Bethel Outing Club, P.O. Box 637, Bethel, ME 04217, with checks payable to the Bethel Outing Club. The children's event registration fee is $4. The cost is $3 for each dog and human, with rentals available for an additional $3. Baggies are provided for trail waste. For more information call 364-

Wal-Mart plans approved

MEXICO-A proposed Super Wal-Mart received site review and shoreland zoning approval recently from the Mexico Planning Board. If plans proceed as expected, groundbreaking for the store will take place in late March or early April. The project is currently awaiting permits from the Maine departments of Environmental Protection and Transportation. #### Tech foundation launches Web site

AUGUSTA—The Maine Science and Technology Foundation unveiled the state's new Web-based clearinghouse of science and technology information at a news conference with Gov. Angus King and legislative leaders. The Web site — www.mainescience.org creates a single portal site for businesses, researchers, educators, students and the public looking for information about science and technology in Maine. The idea for the clearinghouse originated in 1997 when a special commission reviewed the state's high technology industries. The commission offered recommendations for improving Maine's ability to attract and retain high-tech industry. It proposed creating a clearinghouse to serve as a single source of information for persons developing high-tech businesses in the state. The site lists echnology-intensive business and showcases some of their successes, lists links to job opportunities and identifies educational institutions that offer courses in science and technology-related subjects, as well as links to science resources for teachers and educational information for students.

From the Bethel Police Log:

Police help out in Albany

At 2:21 p.m. on Jan. 19 police received notification of an accident on Route 5 in Bethel. The officer then found a vehicle off the road in Albany. State police were notified, but requested the Bethel officer to get information as the trooper was en route to another accident. The officer then drove the driver to Bethel to meet a relative.

Thursday, Jan. 18

At 9 a.m. police observed a subject on Route 2 with an expired inspection sticker. The officer stopped the vehicle, and issued Sunday River Skiway Corp. a summons for permitting unlawful use of a motor vehicle. The driver was given warnings for operating an uninspected motor vehicle and failure to produce a valid insurance card.

At 7 p.m. police summonsed Joseph T. Vedella, 47, of Bethel on Railroad Street for operating after suspension, operating an unregistered motor vehicle and failure to display a certificate of inspection. He had operated his vehicle to the gas station for fuel.

The World Championship is held every other year, sandwiching Olympic years. It is the culminating event in World Cup racing.

If Chamberlain keeps skiing this fast, he may find himself living another dream - competing for the U.S. in the 2002 Olympics in Salt Lake City.

"I'm definitely focused on making the Olympic team," he said. "It just depends on how well I'm skiing next year."

This week, though, Chamber-lain's focus is strictly on Finland. "It's great to be headed to Finland,"

Supporting a racing career

Part of the joy of going to the World Cup will be the crowd. In Finland, more than 100,000 spectators will line the course. Nordic skiing at this level attracts the kind of attention in Europe that the Superbowl or World Series attracts

The lack of attention the sport receives in the U.S. makes funding a racing career difficult. "A constant concern is coming up with the funding for the next race," he said.

Chamberlain has a number of sponsors that supply his equipment, including Fischer, Solomon, Swix, and Louis Garneau.

The World Championship races are funded by the U.S. ski team. But Chamberlain must pay for airfare and lodging to attend other

He receives financial support from Bangor Savings Bank. Their Website, Bangorsavings.com, features exclusive updates and photos that Chamberlain posts from race sites around the world, background information, and a race schedule.

Locally, Chamberlain also receives financial and moral support from the Bethel Outing Club.

"They've given me incredible support," he said. "They've given me funding help, but more important is the support of the members, and in a bigger way, the support of the Bethel and Gould communities. Everyone around here helps tremendously.

A juggling act Chamberlain races nearly every weekend through the racing season,

"I live in the dorm," Chamberlain said. "We get pretty involved in the each other's lives. My lifestyle is pretty visible to the students. They see that I'm the earliest in bed and up early training in the morning. They see my focus on nutrition and rest, and the sacrifices I make."

Balancing it all is difficult, leaving little time for things like eating. "I need to consume 4,000 to 6,000 calories a day," he said. "One of my biggest concerns is that I eat enough. It's easy to not have time to replenish all that I'm losing. I'm always catching up with the calories I'm burning. I'm always hun-

A grueling race weekend where Chamberlain might compete in three or more races — burns those calories. Rigorous year-round training burns them, as well.

He continued his training regimen while attending Bates College, where he graduated in 1998 as an All American.

Since coming to Gould that same year, he hasn't let up on his training To build endurance, he cycles in the spring and early summer. Roller-skis provide a method for keeping in top Nordic shape when there isn't any snow on the ground. He also hikes the local hills.

Now, the years of hard training, focus, and dedication are paying off. Chamberlain is racing in the top tier of men's Nordic racing, where the pressure is intense. Race day worries

Despite all the training and preparation there are still plenty of things that can go wrong. This happened a few weeks ago in Utah, when Chamberlain came down with the

Beyond fears of illness and injury, Chamberlain must deal with the pressures he puts on himself, as well.

"I get nervous at races like the U.S. Nationals because a lot of things ride on those races. Some pressure is good; it helps you focus.

But when the pressure does mount, Chamberlain has a way to

Solid waste

"Overdrafts are easy to justify when legal exigencies force overdrafts you can't avoid, but this doesn't feel the same to me," said Dresser.

Selectmen Reggie Brown questioned the need for more hours. "It's been those same hours for umpteen years," he said. But Cole noted that until the recent move of the recycling containers from the Bethel Airport to the Route 2 location, residents had been able to recycle on a 24/7 basis, but now they can do so only 13 hours a week.

The SWR Board felt the extra hours were now needed to encourage recycling, he said.

The selectmen ultimately tabled the matter and instructed Cole to come back with a proposal for paying for the additional hours.

Reject extra share of costs

The board members were even less enthusiastic about the SRW Board's second proposal: increasing slightly Bethel's share of the cost of disposing of metal waste and construction debris.

Under the terms of the recent agreement that formed the threetown operation, Bethel would pay 77 percent of the overall cost of operating the joint facility, Newry would pay 13 percent and Hanover 10 percent.

Those figures were to be adjusted, based on actual usage, at the end of a year.

But citing new figures on population for the three towns, the SRW Board proposed immediately increasing Bethel's share of the metal and construction debris portion to 79.4 percent, and reducing Newry's and Hanover's share to, respectively, 11.5 and 9.1 percent.

The actual difference in what Bethel would pay annually under the proposed arrangement is small - approximately $1,000 out of a total solid waste budget of $300,000, Cole said — but the timing did not sit well with the select-

"The timing strikes me as pretty crumby," said Dresser. "We get the thing passed through and they raise Bethel's rates immediately."

"We're being made to look the fools. We all agreed to a deal and we've only barely consummated that deal and it comes back changed two weeks later," he said. "I won't vote for that. It seems to me that if you present something to people and it says this is how the costs are going to be allocated, and we'll check it again in a year, then you ought to check it again in a

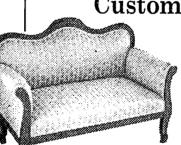

Asked if he had voted for the proposed change at the SRW meeting, Cole said he had. "I voted for it because fair's fair, and that's the way it is. The numbers are the numbers," he said. The selectmen, however, voted unanimously against the change, but indicated they would be willing to look again at each town's share after the agreed-upon year of joint operation.

These had been untouched since they were installed, about 15 years ago. Noting that the bulbs appeared different from the typical light bulbs, she took them to Rockingham Electric in Gorham, N.H., to get exact duplicates. These, she took home and screwed into the fixture. No lights. She asked me to check out the fixture. When I couldn't find anything wrong, I asked if she had any regular 60W light bulbs. Congratulations, also, to the AES Geography Spelling Bee winner, Mark Emerson. He will be taking a school-level test which will be sent to Washington, D.C., for the final level of the competition. I wish him well.

Betty Moore entertained her granddaughter, Kistina Gerlorin, and her son-in-law, Robert, for a few days recently.

Last week, I made the big mistake of turning on the radio while I was getting ready for work and heard the weather report for the upcoming week — snow, snow and more snow was predicted. So, while I was getting dressed, I thought up the following poem. Guess what? It worked; we didn't get all that ugly white stuff that had been forecast. So I now consider this poem a good luck charm against snow. As you will be able to tell, my mentor, Dr. Seuss, had a lot to do with the "iambic pentameter," if that's the right phrase. Whatever — here it is:

I do not like it when it snows/I do not like it when it blows/I do not like it when it falls/I do not shape it into balls/I hate to shovel, hate to ski/And snowmobile — not for me/I cannot think of any good/That comes with snow — I wish I could/And as for fishing under ice,/How could that be very nice?/I wish that I could move away/And have a nice, warm, sunny day/But as of now that cannot be/Alas, alas, for poor, poor me.

I know there are a lot of people out there who will not agree with my sentiments on the subject of how much snow is enough snow, and that's okay. Get a column of your own and rebut me, or send hate mail. Just be sure to include some news.

You still have some time left until Jan. 31 to make your dogs legal. After that, watch out for Dan Perry.

cold, snowy and beautiful month. Winter sports of course predominated during the weekend. To each his own whether it be cross-country skiing, snowshoeing, ice fishing, snowmobiling, or just curling up in front of the fire with a good book. I opted for the last one.

I had a phone call from Sylvia Wight of Newry, formerly of Upton, informing me of the deaths of the Rev. Norman Scruton and his wife, Marion. We will miss their annual visit, for they were a regular part of the summer scene. Even though they were both over eighty, they could be seen portaging a canoe overland or paddling up the lake to a favorite camping spot, at sunset. They were truly one with nature. The Reverend Scruton served the spiritual needs of this area many years ago. He was the last pastor to the Umbagog Interstate Parish, which served Upton, Newry and Errol. This parish was founded in 1926. The Scrutons also provided lands that will be forever wild in Upton. Our sympathy is extended to their family and our thanks for the privilege to have known this wonderful couple. Our sympathy is also extended to the family of Elwin Brown Jr, former resident of Upton, who is well remembered by some of the older residents.

The "Rug Rats Skiing Program," taught by the teachers and students of Gould Academy, is alive and well. It is a great program and the children, beneficiaries of it, think it's great. My friend, the mink, returned and stole the whole suet ball. He then departed to swamps unknown with his booty. I miss the vicious little guy. He was very entertaining. One day I saw him hanging by his teeth from the suet. He had a great grip and thank goodness it wasn't the seat of someone's pants. I hung another suet ball yesterday. The Woodpeckers head for the suet as soon as he leaves. He makes it rough and easy for them to peck. The food chain in Upton is very active. Could "Mink Watching" be the predecessor to Cabin Fever? The "Birds of the Week" are everyone's favorites — the downy and hairy woodpeckers. Get out your trusty guides and read about them.

We have another species of bird in the area this week. He can be found at the mouth of the Cambridge River drilling holes in the ice. His plumage varies and he's been known to shiver quite often. His beak may be red or blue. His diet consists of Dunkin Doughnuts washed down with quantities of hot coffee. He is a very interesting bird to be sure.

chocolate milk was a real special treat. There are certain things that are perfectly complimented by a cold glass of chocolate milk. It goes so well with a grilled hot dog on a toasted bun or chocolate chip cookies warm from the oven. White milk is, of course, good with these things, but chocolate milk, ah, the piece de resistance.

Well, real chocolate milk, as I remember it. doesn't exist anymore. I know, I've tried them all. At least some of the products on the market are honest enough to call it chocolate flavored drink. But every now and then I encounter a product that has the audacity to call itself chocolate milk.

Every time, I hope against hope that it really is the chocolate milk of my youth. I buy the milk, run home and grill up some hot dogs or bake a batch of chocolate chip cookies and sit down to reward my taste buds. Every time I'm disappointed as my taste buds are bored to sleep by the dull, tasteless, watery liquid.

My taste buds have a similar reaction whenever I introduce them to real dairy butter. Butter doesn't taste like it used to either. I don't know how this can be. How could it possibly have but I get really frustrated when I

Lorraine Larson It has been a rather quiet week news wise. Andy and I attended the Sunday church service and potluck dinner at the Church of the Nazarene. The district superintendent, the Rev. Dunlop, was present and delivered the sermon. He and his wife, Reba, also sang "Sheltered in the Arms of God," one of my favorites. In fact, I once told my son-in-law I wanted him to sing it at my funeral and his reaction was, "Yeah, right, Mum." Well, it was a thought. We also had a surprise visit from Crystal Grant. Somehow the young people grow up overnight and learn to drive and such. It is hard to believe the Grants have been gone a year, but they have. Crystal said her mother fell and injured her shoulder. I can empathize with that. It's been four years since I fell on mine and it's just getting to the point where I have full use of my arm.

Her blood pressure was also very low. At the time we saw her, she said the doctors didn't think she had a heart attack, but something was obviously wrong so she was under observation and I just get to feeling better and Andy gets sick. I guess, however, it is better to have one ill at a time. I'll never forget the year John and I and Marcia and Ralph, along with my mother, were all ill with the flu at the same time. We took our temperatures and the one with the lowest temperature at the time had to get the juice. No one though had to go very often because we really didn't feel like eating. Anyhow, it was a bad time, but we managed to survive. But we all remember it, that is Ralph, Marcia and I do.

My friend, Diane Thurston of Albany, was operated on Tuesday at St. Mary's Hospital in Lewiston, and I was surprised to get a call from her Thursday evening, as she had gotten home. Mercy, that's an awful short time. One hardly has time to get awake. Have a speedy fecovery, Diane.

a great start to the New England Jeep Dealers' Celebration of Winter 2001. A dozen fun-loving (and slightly loony) plungers dipped in the Androscoggin River on the shore of Bethel Outdoor Adventures. A Jeep parade, a Jeep obstacle course, a bonfire and a chili luncheon were among the day's festivities. Many thanks to Jeff and Pattie Parsons and family for host-ing the event, to Steve Wight and the Winterfest Committee for helping with the details of the day and to Doug Wilson who helped with Historical Society at their Robinson House facility, was a tremendous way to complete the memorable day. Many thanks to Becky Secrest and Randy Bennett for coordinating the exhibit opening and to all who donated food or beverage. The exhibit will be on display throughout the Celebration of Winter 2001.

We have several volunteers that we call on again and again to help us with the event signs. A big polar bear thank-you to Jeff Sterling, Dave Freiday and Dave Berry for their tireless efforts.

Stay tuned for more fun events this Saturday. In addition to the exciting world-class event being held at Sunday River, the first Annual Antique Snowmobile Ride-In and Grooming Rodeo will be taking place on the Bethel Station snowman lot, starting at 9 a.m. We expect more than 100 sleds to be on exhibit. All the major snowmobile manufacturers will be present displaying their finest products. A cookout lunch will be available, there will be plenty of opportunity to try out equipment and sign up for guided trail rides.

For more information on participating in the event, contact Rocky at Sun Valley Sports, 824-7533. "Hat's off" to the Chamber's Partnerships and Events Director Emily Beers, for all her effort in making the Bethel area a happening place this winter.

A VIEW OF MT. ABRAM in the early years of the 20th century from Locke Mills. The present Route 26 is in the foreground. In the center of the photo is the Locke Mills Railroad Station, which was demolished in the 1970s. This photograph is one of thousands that can be found at the Bethel Historical Society, which also possesses an outstanding collection of manuscripts, books, documents, and artifacts relating to western Maine and northern New Hampshire. The society is currently raising funds to establish its Regional History Center on Broad Street and the 1821 O'Neil Robinson House, which now houses exhibit galleries, offices, and the museum shop. Completion of this project will provide for improved storage space and greater access to collections as well as rooms devoted to educational activities, genealogical and historical research, and traditional crafts. Once the center is fully operational it will offer an expanded series of lectures, special events, conferences, courses, seminars, and publications. To learn more about this project, call the society at 824-2908 or (800) 824-2910 or use the email address history@bdc.bethel.me.us or visit the Web site

In Loving Memory of Libby Scribner

They are not dead, who leave us this great heritage of remembered joy... They still live in our hearts, in the happiness we knew, in the dreams we shared -They still breathe in the lingering fragrance windblown from their favorite flowers -They still smile in moonlight's silver and laugh in sunlight's sparkling gold -They still speak in the echoes of words we've heard them say again and again -They still move in the rhythm of waving grasses, in the dance of tossing branches. They are not dead; their memory is warm in our hearts, comforting our sorrow. They are not apart from us, but a part of us...

For love is eternal; and those we love shall be with us throughout all eternity.

Sadly missed by sisters; Wilma & Norma; brother-in-law; Albert: nieces & nephews; John, Linda, Debbie, Nancy, Willard, Jane & Jim
